

Dan Fussell
Director, Technical Advisory
Services

Dan has 17 years of consulting experience, focused on driving technology change, building high-performing teams, and advising equity investors in the high-tech and software industries. He has demonstrated his technical and advisory acumen across multiple industries including healthcare, software, financial services, and consumer products, specifically in the mergers and acquisitions space. He has a highly collaborative and people-oriented approach that encourages new ideas, modernized technologies and processes, and individual growth. Dan's focus at ISG is to transform the way technology problems are solved in the public sector space, using his background in software product management, modern data platforms, and cloud transformation to tackle some of the state's largest challenges.

Dan is a graduate of the University of Washington and is an avid hiker, golfer, and girl dad to Lexi and Kaia.
